Instructional management becoming operational in county school district

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The state-mandated Testing and Instructional Management Program is beginning to be operational in the Hancock County School District, according to Michael Bonney, curriculum coordinator.

Bonney told the county school board Thursday at a special board meeting, the program must be fully implemented by the first week in June but it will probably take a long time to work out all problems in the

The school board also viewed a film provided by the State Department of Education on the Instructional Management System to get a better understanding of how the program works.

The Instructional Management System is a process for "managing instruction systematically in order to monitor program success and student achievement.'

The system identifies specific things a student need to learn, devises a method to determine if these things have been learned and uses the resulting data to determine if changes need to take place and if so what changes, Bonney said.

In this system, the state actually provides school district with a list of objectives each student must learn in a class to get a passing grade, according to Terrell Randolph, school superintendent.

"Tests are provided to test students on these objectives by the computer and every student must have learned 100 percent of the state objectives to pass," he continued.

Students who did not learn these objectives are retaught in extended school programs either after school, on Saturdays or in the summer, Randolph said.

Since the reteaching of these objectives is mandatory, the state is asking for $6.5 million funding, he added.

"This is necessary because most school districts can not come up with the funding to pay for the remedial work," Randolph said.

Also as a part of this system, the state developed a testing program which includes the Basic Skills

Assessment Program (BSAP). BSAP is a tool to measure the strengths and weakness of a school's instructional program and tests specific core objectives in reading, language arts and mathematics.

All students in grades three, five, eight and 11 are tested but the score is not used to determine a student's grade.

The state testing program also includes a Functional Literacy Examination which is a "stateadministered test of specific core objectives that represent the application of basic skills to everyday life SCHOOL BOARD-Page 2A

Improvements underway in Bay St. Louis parks

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK Improvements in several Bay St.

Louis parks is underway as a $28,000 grant is utilized to fund a project to upgrade city-owned parks.

Included in the improvements is new playground equipment, lighting and resurfacing of a tennis court.

The total project cost is $56,000 and Parks and Playgrounds funding is supplying the $28,000 matching amount for the project, according to Commission President George Pro-

The grant was awarded through the Outdoor Recreation Branch division of Mississippi Bureau of Recreation and Parks' Department of Natural Resources.

A lot of the credit for the project must be given to Mary Harris, coordinator of the project for the commission, Proulx said.

"Mary has done a marvelous job on this project and is the one who really got the whole thing going," he

Harris worked extensively with Cathy Moon of the South Mississippi Rlanning and Development District to plan the project and secure the grant, he added.

Washington Street Park, City Park near City Hall and Seventh Street Park are the locations where the improvements will completed. Proulx said use of grant funds for improvements at McDonald Park and Larroux Park is prohibited by grant guidelines as outlined in the Land and Water Conservation Pro-IMPROVEMENTS—Page 7A

Waveland proposes annexation for US-90's commercial future

BY DENA BISNETTE

After January 1, Waveland officials will begin work that could lead to annexation of sections of. Hancock County lying to the north and west of city limits.

According to Mayor John Longo Jr., there will be practically no initial benefits to the city as far as tax revenue is concerned but the proposed annexation will open up a section of US-90 frontage for future commercial development.

Longo said Friday that the proposed annexation area will square off a future Walmart site that presently includes a small section of county land on which the back of the store will be located.

"That will put the entire site in the city. No sense it being part in the city and part in the county," the mayor said.

The proposed annexation boundaries will continue down Lower Bay Road to the back of Bucanneer

State Park. Only about 1,500 feet of property on the north side of US-90 will be included "to square off that boundary," Longo explained.

"We want this because it will develop our inner city and protect it. It will also protect our sanctuary,' he said, referring to a bird and game sanctuary in the state park.

"We intend to see that piece of Highway 90 full of successful businesses. We have to protect it under the Southern Standard Building Code or that place could become a junkyard."

The city uses a revised version of the Southern Standard Building Code, which regulates construction and is used in most cities in Mississippi, although the revised version does include some special modifications for problems unique to coastal areas.

In addition, Waveland has zoning and Hancock County does not. Without zoning, there is no way to regulate type of structure or proper-

The proposed annexation would add very little in population to Waveland, as most of the area is either commercial property or woods, Longo added.

The mayor, who has served more than 20 years, said he had been through several annexation procedures before and that experience indicates to him that some city services could begin as early as Jan. 1, 1989, if the proposed annexation is

Those services include such items as police and fire protection, garbage collection and lighting along the highway.

Utilities would soon follow, he add-

He said the city presently has most of the resources needed to provide utilities to those areas that do not yet have them, and that Waveland must demonstrate its ability to provide any potential annexation with utilities before approval can be obtained from the U.S. Department of Justice.

Longo also stated that some of the residents of the proposed annexed area had requested annexation.

"It will be a wonderful thing that will benefit the city and a lot of people," he commented.

Kidnapping warrant delayed, child could be returned the person or persons hiding fiveyear-old Chrissy Foxworth has been delayed because phone calls reported to authorities have indicated that the child may be return-

Bernice Singley of Ansley, the child's great-grandmother, joined Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, District Attorney Cono Caranna and her own attorney, Gail Nicholson, to make a public plea Thursday for the child's return.

Singley, who raised the child's mother, the late Dorrie Lynn Singley, asked that whoever has Foxworth bring her back as soon as "How could you go to bed and sleep at night when you don't know where the child's at, or who she's with?" Singley said. The child has been missing since Aug. 22, when her mother refused to turn her over to her ex-husband, Timothy Foxworth, and alleged that he had sexually molested the fivevear-old.

Prior to a Marion County judge's decision that Foxworth be turned over to her father, she and her mother had stayed in Ansley with Dorrie Lynn Singley then hid the child and did not reveal her whereabouts before dying Oct. 14 in a New Orleans, La., hospital.

Caranna had stated last week that he was prepared to issue an arrest. warrant against whoever was hiding the child and that the person or persons doing so could face charges as serious as kidnapping, particularly if they had transported the girl across state lines.

He said that action has been delayed because several telephone calls to a third party had indicated the child might be returned "if certain conditions are met."

Acting on one of those conditions, he said he was prepared to request that Hancock County Youth Court conduct an abuse hearing as soon as Foxworth is returned to determine if the girl has been abused or neglected while she has been in Caranna said Singley has been cooperating and assisting authorities in the investigation and is prepared to sign a kidnapping warrant if one is needed later.

Missing raccoon's whereabouts sought

BY DENA BISNETTE Rudy the green-eyed raccoon is different from others of his species, and right now, he is missing.

Dianne Hunt, a biologist who acquired Rudy through Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society (WRANPS), is searching for the animal which has been missing for several weeks in the northern Pass Christian area off Menge Avenue.

She said one of the ways she recognizes Rudy, having worked with numerous orphaned or injured raccoons until the animals were capable of being released, is that his facial markings include more white than usual.

It is his green eyes, however, that make him instantly recognizable to almost anyone, whether the person, knows much about raccoons or not.

Usually, light reflecting off a raccoon's eyes cause them to glow yellow or yellow-orange, but Rudy's eyes glow green from a dietary deficiency that occurred when he was young.

A veterinarian said the raccoon has some type of cataract development that causes the green color, but it has not caused blindness.

Hunt said another factor that makes Rudy different is that he was raised in an apartment with a family's children rather than as a wild animal.

"It is also illegal to cage a raccoon under state law," she said.

Hunt, who has a special permit to work with wild animals, is sometimes forced by a raccoon's injuries or other circumstances to temporarily cage one of the creatures.

She uses a cage the size of a small room and has to provide lots of toys and other stimulation to keep the raccoons busy, but says that the best thing to do is rehabilitate and release the animals as soon as possi-

"They simply are not pets," Hunt said. "They do very poorly in cages."

She sometimes takes raccoons from the WRANPS wildlife ehabilitation center to her home, located on 121 acres, for release.

At the center, Rudy spent his days asleep, draped over the rafters in the redfish hatchery there, and went out with others of his species during the night to learn to climb, forage for food and perform other survival

When he became accustomed to the center, Hunt took him home to release him.

When an animal is first released, Hunt will provide food to supplement. the creature's diet until it is able to obtain enough food on its own. Some continue to come to her for food, as Rudy did.

Every night I would go out there with the food and call to him, and every night he came to me for two years," she said. Although animals generally stop seeking humans eventually, Hunt said Rudy was still so tame after two years that she was able to touch him. Because he is so tame, she said she is concerned that someone will

State drivers' license office not to close during holidays

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Mississippi drivers' licenses are issued every Tuesday in Hancock County in the Crawford Room of the City-County Library on Ulman Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

But planning ahead can make the process easier and help insure that it takes only one visit to get a license, according to Mississippi State Trooper Robert Thompson.

"The biggest problem is that everyone seems to come in at the same time and we average from 100 to 150 licenses each Tuesday," he

The busiest times are from 8-9 a.m., 12 noon to 1 p.m. and 3:30 to 5 p.m., Thompson said.

HARRISON HERO- Col. Jerry E. Singleton, 3300th Technical Training Wing commander, became one of the first persons to receive the Harrison Heroes Awards for outstanding contributions to the Mississippi Gulf Coast tourism industry. Colonel Singleton received the award for his work in bringing a Technology in Training Education Conference to the Mississippi Gulf Coast. The conference will bring 400 people to the area for three days next March. The annual conference is co-sponsored by the Air Force Academy, Air Training Command and Air University. "Meetings such as this have a tremendous economic impact on our local tourism industry, and we wanted to single out individuals who have made contributions to this effort," said Susan Griggs, communications manager for the Harrison County Tourism Commission. "Because of Keesler's excellent reputation and the known hospitality of the Gulf Coast, it was easy to convince the conference planning committee to bring the conference to Biloxi," Colonel Singleton said.

We all have our own, special Thanksgiving traditions, don't we?-and woe be to the one who tries to alter that mince pie recipe or the oyster dressing formula or what have you-right?

So. I'll refrain from telling you exactly how I cook my turkey (actually, I don't cook a turkey anymore these days, I leave that to the younger generation.)

And, I won't presume to tell you what sort of dressing (stuffing) that noble bird should have, but if you don't make my own special oyster stuffing, you'll miss a treat—my family used to tell me that I could omit the turkey, and double up on the oyster stuffing!

As a matter of fact, some years ago, when turkey became an available 'round the calendar, not just at Thanksgiving or Christmas, I decided one hot summer day to put a turkey into the oven and exit the kitchen, happily anticipating all the easy summer meals that one bird would provide.

"No way, no way," as the saying now goes! The turkey, done to a glistening turn, and accompanied by tasty side dishes, elicited only indignant glances and demands from my husband and sons, "There's the oyster stuffing?"

As I said at the time, anyone else could just cook a turkey!

So, I learned from that incident-and now, my oyster stuffing serves me well in other ways—as an accompaniment to baked chicken breasts, as a side dish with broiled chicken or ham slices, in "stuffed oyster shells," as a filling for pastry cases or topping for toast bits on the hors d'oeuvre tray-or whenever I'm in the mood for cooking-and there are seldom leftovers when the tray goes 'round.

(Truthfully, this is not my recipe at all-this is the way Mary, the family cook, made her oyster stuffing as far back as I can remember, and that's quite a long time! Basically, it depends, of course, upon the size of your turkey, and so forth. I prefer to roast the bird and cook the stuffing separately, with perhaps a small amount of stuffing in the bird-but do as you please. I never make it quite the same way each time. So, here's:

Try cranberries for Thanksgiving

Cranberries are as traditional with the holidays as turkey. It is believed that cranberries were served at the first Thanksgiving, and have been a tradition ever since. The cranberry, which is a North Armerican fruit, however, was being enjoyed by the Indians long before the Pilgrims arrived. The bright red berry was an important part of the Indian's "convenience food" pemmican. The pemmican was a combination of venison fat and the crushed berries.

T t was the dawn of the 20th Century, and South Mississippi was well on its way to becoming a busy center of trade and commerce.

A new invention called the automobile was making its debut, and causing quite a stir. But even cars couldn't shorten the tough two-day journey from Henderson Point around to Bay St. Louis.

So Hancock Bank stepped forward and helped finance the purchase of a new ferry. One that could safely and quickly cross the Bay of St. Louis with up to 20 cars and all their excited passengers as well.

ater, the bank was trustee for a from one side of the Bay to the other. Thousands of cars cross it every day.

But a lot of folks fondly remember that ferry, and how much easier it made life for families in South Mississippi.

From the earliest days of its existence,

Hancock Bank has looked ahead to what South Mississippi could be. And we've provided the personal service and monetary means to make it possible.

XX7 e've helped bridge financial gaps for growing businesses. And helped families find shortcuts to their dreams.

That's the commitment we share with you. And it's one we'll never forget.

We're Hancock Bank. And since 1899 we've been making it possible in South Mississippi.

The annual Hancock County Community Thanksgiving Service will be Tuesday, 7 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, Main Street, Bay St.

Ministers from area churches will conduct the services and refreshments will follow.

This is an annual event for our community and it is hoped everyone will try and attend.

This will be a time to offer thanks for our many blessings received during the past year.

A collection at the service will go to the Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund.

In recent months the Hancock County Emergency Relief has been very busy filling the needs of many deserving people.

We hope to see you at the Thanksgiving Service.

Firefighters are busy preparing to make Christmas a special day for many deserving Hancock County youths.

The Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund's operation is really gearing up for a big year, according to Bay Fire Chief Andrew Lizana.

Help has been coming from many businesses, corporations and individuals with donations of cash, new and slightly used toys.

Persons wishing to donate cash or toys to the Doll and Toy Fund may do so at the Bay St. Louis Fire Station, Old Spanish Trail and Bookter Street, or Coast Electric Power Association's main office on US-90.

Coast Electric is a convenient drop-off for the Doll and Toy Fund and the company's employees are eager to help our firefighters.

We know there will be many deserving youngsters in our area at Christmas.

We attended the dedication ceremonies on Thursday for the new boat launch in Pearlington. This new county facility appears to be one of the finest in our area and should be welcomed by fishermen throughout the county.

The new facility is located on the Pearl River, which many of you know is very good for freshwater fishing and an easy excess to the marshes for saltwater activities.

The new boat launch was a joint effort by local, state and several federal agencies, and everyone one should be commended. Thanks to our current and past Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

OLDER AMERICANS ACT

Senator Thad Cocran hailed Senate passage of legislation extending senior citizens' programs for four more years. The Senator, ranking member of the Aging subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, cited improvements in existing programs authorized by the Older Americans Act.

He told Senate collegues, "We have a bill that refines, improves and modifies these programs, and makes them more sensitive to the real needs that many of our senior citizes have in our modern society," Senator Cochran said further,

'We have written into law a new flexibility on the part of local managers and administrators. They can now identify in their local areas with a greater degree of freedom the programs and kinds of services that are most needed by the elderly population who are eligible.

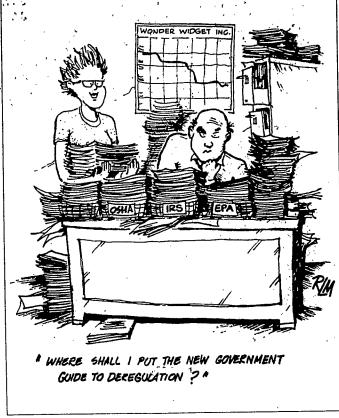

"We have also ensured that those who are served by the programs will actually have a place at the table where decisions about those promade." are

The Senator noted the bill provides that a majority of the Federal Council on Aging be made up of persons who are eligible for programs authorized by the Older Americans

The conference report extends through FY 1991 federal programs for senior citizens, including nutrition, recreation, multipurpose senior centers, health care, low-cost transportation and legal services.

Senator Cochran pointed out the legislation expands certain in-home, non-medical services, including those for victims of Alzhemier's disease and other neurological and organic brain disorders.

The bill "will make it possible for many of our senior citizens to avoid ing them in half and wetting them down. Clean out all ashtrays in your home, office, or car and put them away. Discard matches; hide lighters, or give them away.

When the urge to smoke hits, take a deep breath. Hold it a second, then release it very, very slowly. Taking deep rhythmic breaths is similar to smoking, only you'll inhale clean air, not poisonous gases.

Exercise to help relieve tension. Climb stairs rather than take the elevator, park the car a block or two from your destination and walk the rest of the way. At home, practice touching your toes, jog in place, do jumping jacks.

When tempted to reach for a cigarette, think of a negative image about smoking. Select you worst memory connected with the habit—the time you burned a hole in your suit or when you were left completely breathless running for a bus that pulled away. Imagine this experience for 15 seconds whenever the urge occurs.

Reward yourself with oral substitutes in the same way you may house, shampoo the dog.

Throw out all cigarettes by break- have used cigarettes. Good examples: sugarless gum, lemon drops, pumpkin or sunflower seeds, apple slices, carrot sticks, unbuttered popcorn and stick cinnamon.

Eat three or more small meals. This maintains constant blood sugar levels, thus helping to prevent urges to smoke. Avoid sugar-laden foods and spicy items that can trigger a desire for cigarettes.

Scramble up your day and change habits connected with smoking. Drive a different route to work; eat lunch at a new place; leave the "scene of an urge." At home, avoid your smoking chair" after dinner, reach for gum rather than a cigarette when answering the phone.

Cleanse your body of nicotine. Drink liquids-lots of them. Water (6-8 glasses a day), herbal teas, fruit juices and caffeine-free soft drinks all fit the bill. Pass up coffee, caffeinated soft drinks and alcohol, as they can increase your urge to smoke. Keep your hands-and mindbusy. CHILD DAY CARE AMONG INCENTIVES TO ATTRACT, RETAIN VA HEALTH CARE EMPLOYEES

WASHINGTON-"We cannot continue to provide the highest level of health care for our veterans if we insist that the employees of VA medical facilities choose between their commitment to service and their families," said Rep. Liz Patterson.

Patterson is the author of legislation that would authorize the establishment of child day care centers for Veterans Administration medical center employees. The measure is part of an omnibus health care bill, H.R. 3449, targeted primarily at the recruitment and retention of health care personnel. The bill also contains pay incentives for registered nurses and other skilled health care professionals and has been ordered reported to the House by the Veterans' Affairs Committee. The government's General Accounting Office reports that 52 percent of mothers with children under the age of six are in the workforce and, as a result, both governmental and private sector employers have begun to react to the need for worksite child care assistance. VA has already established child day care centers at 14 medical centers, and five more are planned for operation during fiscal year 1988. Patterson's legislation authorizes a system-wide program that is intended to be self-sufficient.

Under Patterson's program, the VA would provide space in existing VA facilities for the day care centers and would provide support services (custodial, utilities). Personnel expenses would be covered by charges established by the center.

Patterson holds that worksite child care improves morale, reduces turnover, and increases productivi-

"If the Veterans Administration is to compete with private facilities for health care professionals in the coming years, it will have to provide services that make it attractive to health care providers," said Patterson.

Help agency offers tips for party givers

Officials have proclaimed the period from Thanksgiving to New Years as 'Save The Holidays

The commemoration is sponsored by the Committee on Alcoholism & Drug Abuse for Greater New Orleans, a United Way Agency and which is accessible from Hancock County by calling 1-800-228-9711 +

"There is nothing more tragic, especially during a festive time as the Holiday Season, than to have someone injured or killed. It takes away all of the happiness of the season. And the same is true for anyone who cannot drink but does so anyway. The pain is unbelievable," according to Ashton Brisolar of Waveland, executive director of the committee.

Following are tips for those giving parties this Holiday Season:

► Have non-alcoholic beverages available for those who do not wish to or who cannot drink;

►Let guests make their own drinks-alcoholic or otherwise-and if you make drinks, make sure they are singles, not doubles or triples; ► Have food available for drinkers to nibble on. That will slow down the absorption of the alcohol and make for a safer drinker;

►Try to monitor what is occurring so no one gets drunk. Serve food, coffee, soft drinks, etc.;

► Don't push a drink on anyone; the person could be on medication which mixed with alcohol could kill the person; the individual could have an ulcer, which alcohol could perforate; the person could be an alcoholic, and that one drink could ruin the holidays for him/her and the family.

►If soneone has a few too many, please don't let them drive home. Call a cab; arrange for someone else to drive; or let the person "sleep it off" at the house. Take the keys away, if necessary; it is better to have someone angry but alive the next day, than happy today and dead tomorrow.

During the Holiday Season, CADA will be publicizing responsible drinking and not driving and drinking, as well as the help which is available through speaking programs, appearances on various media outlets, posters which will be placed in all of the shopping centers and fast food stores, and through special programs which will be planned with a Holiday motif.

Alcoholics, who suffer from a physical disease, making it impossible to drink controllably, have a specially hard time during the Holiday Season. Such a person is just one drink away from intoxication, and must take special care not to expose himself/herself to drinking.

Drinking problems can cause adverse conditions in the physical, psychological, mental, emotional, social, work, and spiritual life of the victim.

Both staff and Brisolara urged citizens of the area to keep in mind that the 524 H-E-L-P number which is backed by a comprehensive referral system, capable of guiding callers to resources for every conceivable problem.

Recently, a toll free number has been placed into service, so that those individuals living outside the calling area could contact the HELP line by calling toll free 1-800-228-9711 (wait for dial tone), and then dial

Holidays are fun times. Drinking, for those who can and who do so responsibly, can be fun; for those who can't or won't drink responsibly, it can be tragic.

Problems of any type put a damper on the Holiday Spirit. Perhaps the best Holiday present an individual with a problem can give to himself or herself, as well as his or her family, is getting help. This is the message which the Committee on Alcoholism and Radiofone are endeavoring to convey to the public.

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial From Mississippi Economic Council

Tort reform is an economic development issue

The Mississippi Legislature has acted on programs to promote economic development a number of imes over the years.

Through programs like Balance Agriculture with Industry and the Industrial Bill of Rights, state lawmakers have shown their support for economic development. Now, legislators are facing another economic development issue—tort reform legislation. Tort reform clearly is an economic development issue. Other states are adopting reforms of their civil justice systems and boasting of it to industrial prospects.

In neighboring-and competing-Alabama, the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker of the House of Representatives formed a leadership team to spark enactment of a series of ten tort reform bills in the 1987 legislative session in that state.

Some 40 states have enacted tort reform measures while Mississippi continues to hold hostage businesses operating in this state.

Everyone Welcome!

The fact is, because of Mississippi's unusually long statute of limitations, because of its unbridled joint and several liablity, because of its lack of restraint on the filing of nonmeritorious lawsuits, businesses in Mississippi operate under greater liability exposure and at a competitive disadvantage when compared to businesses in other states.

The Senate leadership, with the help of Lt. Governor Brad Dye, recognized and responded to the tort reform crisis in Mississippi in 1987. The House rejected the Senate's response.

Hopefully, in 1988, Mississippi's new governor, the new House leadership and House committee leaders will join with Dye and Senate leaders in ending the tort reform crisis in Mississippi.

Tort reform is, after all, an economic development issue.

Wastewater plant expansion a major project

Nov. 18, 1987 To the Editor:

Last week I had occasion to see the work that is going on at the Waveland Regional Wastewater plant on Gulfside Drive in Waveland.

Altough aware that work was going on from reading about it in The Sea Coast Echo, I had no idea it was such a large project.

How about going out and taking some pictures of it?

"These are just a few of the freedoms we have—there are more. There is something else I have learned by comparing our country with the communist countries: we cannot have these freedoms just because the Bill of Rights says so; we must also have the economic process and prosperity to provide these freedoms. In order to continue the legacy of success that he and Bill Colmer have given us and to meet the challenge of the future, we need a proven leader with a broad background-someone with knowledge and experience in business, industry and national defense.

many to fill. Through her crafts, Rethel Owen has found an enjoyable and hopefully profitable use of her time.

Ms. Owen is a resident of 125 Mockingbird Lane, a group home on the campus of South Mississippi Retardation Center.

Although a contributing member of her home, Owen enjoys her time alone. It is during this time alone that she often works on her sewing.

She fashions various birds from scraps of material. Of all the birds she creates, ducks are her favorite model. Her technique is both realistic and detailed in design. Currently, Owen's leisure time in the cottage is spent sculpturing clay animal figures. It is from these figures that she hopes to profit.

clay animal figures. Several steps are required in the "creating" of Owne's art. Selfhardening clay is used to sculpt the various animal figures. After they have cured, she paints the animals with an acrylic paint. Once the paint is dried, the figures are sprayed with a silicon glaze. The animal figures are then ready for display. Owen demonstrates a great talent in her clay sculpturing. She says that when she was a child, her mother worked on clay modeling with her. They used their own dog, cat, and birds as models. She continues to stick to this theme by creating only animal figures. A unibaby.

Owne is employed by the Center's Work Activity Center, a sheltered work shop on the grounds.

Bits On Books

By Katy McGuire Caire

The 'book bag' this week at my house ranged from money making for youngsters to 'pet sitting,' to money making tips for grownups to communal living and helping the homeless—how's that for variety? Here's a sampling:

'Strategies 2000—How to Propser in the New Age and Declare Your Independence from the Uncertainties of Tomorrow,' by Carolyn Corbin, financial consultant. (Eakin Press, Austin, Texas, hard cover, $14.95)

Ms. Corbin offers a positive approach to the changes and trends of the 1980's, 1990's and beyond—an approach that stresses not just coping, but prospering. The book deals, of course, with financial security matters, but goes further, towards achieving a broader base of personal achievmenet and well-being.

'Fast Cash For Kids—by Bonnie and Noel Drew (Homeland Publications, Seabrook Texas, soft cover) Geared towards would-be moneymakers in the 10 to 14 age group; this book presents more than 100 money making projects and encourages the youngsters to develop their talents and abilities. It's an upbeat guide to money for the kids—how to make it and how to manage it. It's a good manual for after school and weekend work, and a good bible for next summer's jobs for those too young to get 'real' jobs in the marketplace.

'That's A Great Idea'—by Tony Husch and Linda Foust (Gravity Publishing Co., Oakland, Calif., soft cover, $9.95)

The authors delinerate brainstorming techniques for developing ideas, for evaluating an idea's commercial potential and for protecting those ideas—in short, they tell us how to get an idea, evaluate, develop and sell a new product—that's a tall order, but the book is a help along the way.

Pet Sitting for Profit — by Patti J. Moran (New Beginnings, Pinnacle, N.C., paperback)

The author calls this 'a complete manual for success" or 'pet sitting made easy'—and that it seems to be. It details how to get started, and includes office procedures and personnel, advertising and general tips for making it all work.

It's a good project for kids, too—winter or summer.

'All God's Children,' by Alexander
La Perchia (Libra Publishers, Inc.,
San Diego, Calif., hard cover, $9.95)
In essence more a philosphical treatise than a novel, this book narrates the thogunts and interactions of six persons, all running away in a sense from their problems and difficulties, to find peace of mind at the end of their journey through communal living and helping others.

Their transport is a Volkswagen bus, their destination is New York City, and specifically, Emmaus House, a home and rehabilitation center for the homeless. (Emmaus House exists, in Harlem, founded and operated by the Rev. David Kirk, a Catholic priest.)

The characters, each flawed in some way, as are most of us, work through to the realization that they are 'All God's Children.'

Bay-Waveland Garden Club

Thursday, Nov. 12, was a rather cold and blustery day at Buccaneer State Park Pavilion No. 3, until Mrs. L.L. Martin and her eight hostesses of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club turned it into a warm sunny picnic with their good food and warm hospitality.

Giant

At noon on Saturday, Nov. 14 when members of the Friendship Oak Chapter, N.S. DAR met at the Long Beach Ramada Inn of Long Beach, a reincarnated Benjamin Franklin made his appearance. He rolled back the calendar to the date of his birth in 1706 and entertained the 19 members in attendance with highlights of his colorful and useful life.

The report on his childhood was brief. Only that he was the 15th child in the family of Josiah Franklin. Was fat, good natured and lazy so his mother thought he might make a good preacher. Formal education was limited. The family could not afford that luxury. He went to work at age fifteen.

Before his reincarnation Benjamin Franklin was known to his neighbors and friends as Captain Bob Engram, U.S. Navy ret'd, owner of a farm in the rural area near Gulfport. There as a gentleman farmer he looks after his catfish pond, his prize Morgan saddle horses, and performs many interesting activities of country living at its best,

Students of American history have a preconceived notion of what Benjamin Franklin looked like. They picture him as being short, dumpy, with stringy shoulder length hair and dressed in home-spun woven clothing sewn by his capable wife, Deborah. But when he spoke it was evident that this rather tall and distinguished looking gentleman was indeed Benjamin Franklin. How else could be have remembered and recalled so many little known facts? He recalled his years as apprentice under the tiresome and merciless rule of his older brother, James, who owned a printing press and possessed a sullen and blusterous temperament. Small wonder young Ben ran away, hid out and admittedly harvested a few "wild oats" before returning to Philadelphia where he married Deborah Reed. What Deborah lacked in way of education she more than made up in energy and a most forgiving nature. She happily acepted Franklin's two year old son who grew up to become Governor of New Jersey.

In listing accomplishments, Franklin said he felt the invention of bifocal glasses headed his list because it helped so many people. He said he organized the Junto Club in an effort toward self-education. The Junto Club led to the establishment by Franklin of The Philadelphia Public Library, a fire company, and the Philadelphia Public Hospital as well as several other organizations for public benefit.

With pardonable pride Franklin told of the importance of the Treaty of Paris. He discussed the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights and went over each amendment to the Constitution stressing the value. His adaptability, his sense of humor, his willingness to compromise and his love for learning made Franklin one of the most useful and beloved of men in American History.

At the conclusion of his talk, Dr. Benjamin Franklin suddenly became Captain Bob Entram, U.S. Navy ret'd and nattily dressed in a navy blue business suit. There was a resounding applause when he accepted an invitation extended by the chapter's regent, Mrs. James Thomas, to attend the business meeting following the luncheon. Engram said: "I enjoy being around a group of women and welcome this opportunity." He entered into the rituals reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, the American Creed, and complimented the hostesses Mmes. Larry Lisenbee and Ruth Holley on the tasteful decorations and excellent menu. With apparent deep interest he listened to the report given by Mrs. William Gemmel, treasurer, on the budget recently adopted by the Board of Directors, and the minutes of the October meeting as read by Mrs. Hazel Erhard which was followed by reports of the various chairmen including anti-litter efforts. The membership chairman, Mrs. Philip Davenport reported a total of 38 members and after a counting of votes applications of four additional members were accepted, assuming national approval.

Mrs. Sallie Ruskin, with two additional members who attended Rosalie Day in Natchez last week, reported work being done toward the planned Colonial Gardens was progressing nicely. A collection was taken toward use as Christmas remembrances for disabled veterans now living in the Gulfport

The next regular meeting of the Friendship Oak Chapter is scheduled for Dec. 9 at 11:30 a.m. at the Ramada Inn of Long Beach. Mrs. Hazel Erhard will serve as hostess. The program is titled Our Country's Historical Christmas Customs".

'A tougher stance against woods arsonists is in order'

Mississippi's current two-month old drought has accelerated forest . fires in numbers, volumes, and intensities with about 90,000 acres burned over in this state as this is written compared to about 60,000 acres a year ago.

Statistical history will record a near abstinence in rainfall from September to mid-November as the chief culprit. But it is unlikely that the report on the climaic factors which created the tinderbox situation will go very far into the human

This I propose to do after consultation with some of the people who keep a close check on the pulsebeat of the goings on out on the somewhat desolate tracts of timber and idle land that prove at times to be both assets and liabilities for our state.

An appalling percent of Mississippi's forest fires are set by man, in other words, arson.

Why? When the state has declared a moratorium on outdoor burning in view of the dangerously dry conditions of woods and fields?

Let's look at some of the answers I've been given. They range in human emotions from greed and unsportsmanlike conduct to well intentioned traditions and cultrual practices to hoped for advantages in pest management.

Starting with the bad and worst, some of the fires are reportedly the result of hunting club rivalries and efforts to move game from one locality to another. In short, buring out one habitat may enhance hunting on an adjacent one.

As many as 35 cases of arson this year may have occurred on lands of Tombigbee National Forest alone, and seven in DeSoto National Forest.

In some cases the motive appears to be greed and unsportsmanlike conduct.

Sometimes arsonists set fires to express their contempt or hate toward whoever owns or controls lands usually near them. This has got to be one of the worst reasons. Fires set by arsonists for these bad reasons usually are secretly set us-reportedly set a few with their grasp of reality a few leagues distant. Kids out on a lark sometimes set a few. It is a caper designed to show how big they are, which misfires. Still others, close to the land, set woods afire in autumn for what they construe to be good intentions-such as cleaning out the undergrowth, improving grazing, making it easier to locate range cattle on earliest growth in the burns in springtime, or trying to get rid of such worrisome outdoors critters and things as chiggers, ticks, snakes and panthers.

You haven't found the best deal on a new or used car until you stop

The tragedy of this is that it usually doesn't really accomplish those things. If it did we wouldn't have to scratch chiggers every spring and summer, or pull off ticks unendingly, or still get scared out of our gourds by surviving and well indeed numbers of cottonmouths, or toss fitfully in our sleep amidst panther inspired nightmares.

Already destroyed this year are plantings which were designed to provide wood pulp for this state's budding newsprint industry in north central Mississippi. But additionally, millions of vigorous, growing pine trees have been finished off by wind-whipped fires that have enveloped the crowns of trees in flame, thus killing them.

The cost of these fires to the Mississippi economy has not yet been estimated, but when it is the problem of arson for whatever reason it will come into sharp focus as a crime that must be dealt with to less than normal, due to state budget

A tougher stance toward apprehension and convicton of arsonists is in order, maybe more effective in the short term than education or sermonizing.

NOMA schedules toy train exhibition

Toy Trains: Every Child's Dream, on view through Jan. 31 at the New Orleans Museum of Art, will highlight military and space-age toy train technology. Drawn from the extensive collection of New Orleanian Dominic C. Schwab, the exhibition also will feature a display of classic trains of every decade from 1916 to the present, and a special section on the golden era of "Trains Which Came to New Orleans."

Building on the success of last year's Childhood Classics: Electric Trains 1916-1986, also drawn largely from Mr. Schwab's collection, this year's exhibition offers a larger operating layout with whistles, ladder men, flag stops, and pumping oil wells children can operate. Last year's exhibition at NOMA was the first public viewing of the remarkable Schwab collection, which has been called by representatives of the Train Collectors Association and the Toy Train museum in Strasburg, Pennsylvania, "the most comprehensive post-World War II toy train collection in the country.

The military and space-age theme of NOMA's upcoming holiday exhibition is the natural outgrowth of Dom Schwab's early collecting years. Intrigued by the large variety of models available and unable to make a decision on just one train for his son's 1954 Christmas gift, he purchased a local distributor's entire in-military." Schwab points out that military and space-age trains which were neglected for many years are now being pursued vigorously by collectors. Initially rejected because they were cheaply made and were not really standard railroad items, interest in them has revived with new collectors coming into the hobby. These collectors, many of whom were born during the post-World War II "baby boom," are fueled by fond memories of toys from their childhoods. For those who are interested, Schwab estimates toy train items from this period have increased approximately 90 percent in

Over the years Schwab has collected hundreds of uncommon military and space-age items. Included in the exhibition are several flatcars with missiles, heliports, launching pads, a Mercury Capsule Carrying Car, and the rarest of all cars in the military and space category, the 1963 Flatcar with Removable Mercury Capsule, which ran for one year only.

With so many to choose from, it was not easy for Schwab to settle on eight representative trains for the Trains of the Decades" section of the exhibition. There was no question, however, that the earliest would be a rare, 1916 American Flyer Clock Work Train, one of the
